

COMMONS TOPPLE THE LORDS IN ANNUAL SHOOT

House of Commons came out on top at the 2010 annual clay shoot versus the House of Lords with a winning margin of just 10 points.

This was a long-awaited victory for the House of Commons after successive losses in 2007, 2008 and 2009.

The event was organised by the House of Commons and held at the West London Shooting School in October, and was sponsored by both Pol Roger Champagne and William Evans. The competition comprised six stands with simulated game targets, and was won by a team flush.

High gun was Lord Dear, with a score of 45 points, with Commons captain Bill Wiggin MP not far behind on 43 points.

The guests enjoyed a game of clay with Mark Elliott of Help for Heroes and the National Organisation of Beaters and Pickers-Up the game speaker. Speaking after the event Sam Edwards of BASC said: 'The day went extremely well and was a lot of fun, ending in a long-victory for the Commons. The instruction was outstanding and the targets were very well looked after by the West London Shooting School.'

Members of the House of Lords and Commons had a competitive and successful day's shooting at the West London Shooting School.
